Mobilize the Warehouse

Many companies are still running legacy RF devices and solutions such as SAPConsole and ITS Mobile, thinking if it ain't broke, why fix it? Aside from the limited functionality, compatibility, and security, not to mention the less-than-desirable user experience, the number one reason to truly mobilize your warehouse is productivity.

The old solutions are transaction-based, forcing users to navigate through multiple screens with up to 20 clicks to complete a single transaction. With SAP UI5, more commonly referred to as SAP Fiori, applications are role-based, allowing users the ability to perform their daily duties inline with their business process(es) with just a few clicks. A few clicks here or there doesn't sound like much at first glance, but throughout the course of a day, extrapolated throughout an entire facility, it's a real game changer. Imagine, using technology to facilitate business as oppose to conforming business around technological limitations.

Add to that the other benefits, such as responsive design, improved UI, accessing native features (camera, push notifications, GPS, etc), and offline functionality, and you can see how making the switch to Fiori revolutionizes RF.
